

MY CLIMATE, MY COMMUNITY

Sustainable Climate Change Exhibit for Rural Audiences

A new traveling exhibition from the Museum of the Earth available Spring 2013. The exhibit addresses sustainable science-based issues such as climate change and energy for rural audiences in New York State by connecting scientific data to significant societal issues. These traveling kiosks are perfect for smaller venues like libraries, town halls, schools and more.

Quick Facts

Size

25 sq. ft.

Audience

Adults, students, families with children
10 and up

Rental Fee & Shipping

Fees and shipping funded by the Museum of the Earth

Support

Installation and Design Manual details exhibition installation and maintenance

Contact

Beth Stricker,
Exhibitions Manager
stricker@museumoftheearth.org
(607) 273-6623 x24

This exhibition presents a dynamic and unique approach to informing your community about climate change impacts. Your audience will learn strategies on how to change and cope with these long-term issues affecting your environment.

Available to New York State only.

Topics include:

- Health problems associated with climate change
- Long-term changes in weather patterns
- Methods to conserve energy in your own home

Features:

Easy assembly/disassembly for travel

Touchscreen for interactive survey

Graphics printed on recycled substrate

Small carbon footprint

ADA accessible design

Hidden access panel for computer hardware

Structure composed of "green" materials